Webscrapping tutorial using Beautifulsoup (bs4)

For this part, we created a database of the top companies hiring job roles assoicated with 'Covid' jobs, 'Corona' virus jobs and 'temporary' workers. We used a web scraper for this task. After extracting and cleaning up our data, we combined and organized it into a data frame: this allows up to access and save data in a database style format.

In [ ]:
```
We first import the packages that are used
import requests
import json
import pandas as pd
import numpy as np
from urllib.request import urlopen from bs4 import BeautifulSoup

We used the requests library to gather data from an API, the json library to format data for easier handling, and the pandas library to manipulate and audit the data. We also imported the urlopne function from urllib.request and BeautifulSoup function from the bs4 library for the web scraping part.

Below is a conceptual model of the project:

In [98]:
```
from IPython.display import Image
Image(r'/Users/karansoni/Desktop/semester 2/DMDD/jobs-projects/conceptual.png')

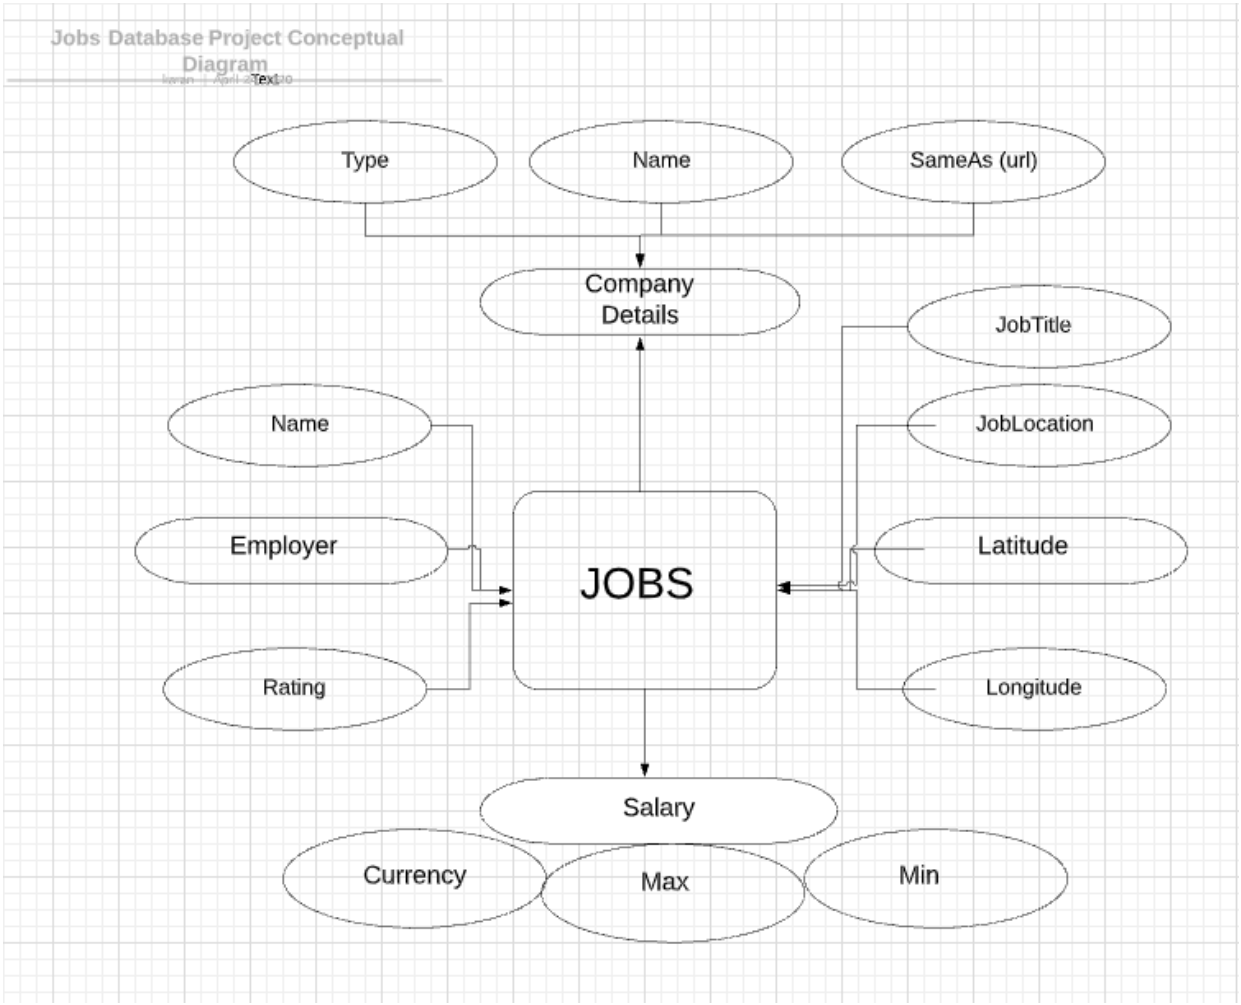
Out[98]:



In [54]:
```
Website URL
url='https://www.fastcompany.com/90484006/these-10-companies-are-hiring-the-most-workers-right-now-coronavirus-be-damned'

We started the web scraping part by searching for a website that contains information about the compaines we are looking for. We found one website which ranks the top 10 employers. We then copied this website url and used it to scrape the website using urlopen() and BeautifulSoup() functions.

In [55]:
Open desired website
html = urlopen(url)
soup = BeautifulSoup(html, 'lxml')

Next, we extracted the title of the website to confirm that we were getting the right data.

In [56]:
```
Extract title of website
title = soup.title
titleText = title.get_text()
print(titleText)

These 10 companies are hiring the most workers amid COVID-19

We were then able to use the get() function to get the full content of the website, which includes all the information.

In [66]:
Get full content of website without formatting
req = requests.get("https://www.techrepublic.com/article/top-70-compan ies-hiring-remote-workers-during-covid-19/", headers={'User-agent': 'M ozilla/5.0 (X11; Ubuntu; Linux x86_64; rv:61.0) Gecko/20100101 Firefox /61.0'})
cont
```

Out[66]:

Others are activating their job search in a time of economic uncertainty to make sure they\'re ready," Reynolds said. "Some are seeking additional sources of income through part-time and project-based remote work. And others have decided they want to switch to a remote job rather than working on-site for safety concerns."\xc2\xa0 \n\n\n\n\n\n   \n   \n\n COVID-19 has impacted the enterprise dramatically, resulting in layoffs, furloughs, and hiring freezes. This list aims to help job seekers locate employment during this economic tailspin, while maintaining social distancing practices.\xc2\xa0 \t\n\n\n   \n   \n\n The most popular career fields hiring remote employees include medical and health, computer and IT, customer service, education and training, sales, and accounting and finance, according to a  \t<ul><li>Avoid scams</li></ul></h3> "Be on the lookout for scam jobs," Reynolds said. "Work-from-home scams are all-to-common in the remote job market. Know what scams typically look like so you can keep yourself safe."\xc2\xa0 Reynolds outlined some of the telltale signs that signify a job posting might be a scam:\xc2\xa0 <ul><li>The job listing sounds too good to be true, with language like quick money, unlimited earning potential, and free work-from-home jobs. \t\t \t\t</li><li>You\'re asked for money or sensitive personal data up front, either to secure your spot, buy a "work from home kit", get software, or other bogus reasons.\xc2\xa0

</li><li>There is a sense of urgency, or the recruiter is pushing you to accept the job now. Any legitimate company won\'t push you into accepting a job offer immediately.
</li><li>The j ob post or email has obvious grammatical or spelling errors.

</li><li>You\'re offered the job without a recruiter verifying your work experience or asking for references.
</li><li>The job description is unusually vague or spends too much time discussing how easy the job is or how much money you\'ll make. It might have grammatical errors, spelling mistakes, or lots of capitalization and punctuation (!!! WORK FROM HOME $$$).
</li></ul><h3> \t<ul><li>Write a remote-specific resume</li></ul></h3> Catering your resume to remote work can be beneficial for landing remote jobs. Even if the individual only has in-office experience, there are still skills that can be catered to remote work.\xc2\xa0 "Make sure you tailor your resume and cover letter for every application, and highlight the skills it takes to be a great remote worker, like communication, time management, independent working, comfort with technology, and digital collaboration," Reynolds said. "Your resume should also highlight any previous remote work experience you have. Even if that experience was only on occasion, it still counts as long as you were productive and effective during the times you worked from home," Reynolds added. <h3> \t<ul><li>Prep for a video interview</li></ul></h3> Just because you can\'t meet in person doesn\'t mean there won\'t be an interview. Video interviews are the common mode of interviewing now that people are remote. People can prepare for video interviews by checking their network connection, dressing professionally, and doing their research on the interviewers.\xc2\xa0 For more, check out How COVID-19 is impacting job seekers and hiring managers on TechRepublic.\xc2\xa0 \n

The list, released on Tuesday, was narrowed down from FlexJobs's 2020 list of the top 100 remote-friendly companies; these 70 are hiring the highest volume of remote jobs right now. SEE: Virtual hiring tips for job seekers and recruiters (free PDF) (TechRepublic) "We've definitely seen an increase in people interested in working remotely and actively seeking remote jobs since the COVID-19 crisis began," said Brie Weiler Reynolds, career development manager and coach at FlexJobs. "The increase seems to be the result of several factors: Some folks have been recently laid off or fear they will be laid off soon. Others are activating their job search in a time of economic uncertainty to make sure they're ready," Reynolds said. "Some are seeking additional sources of income through part-time and project-based remote work. And others have decided they want to switch to a remote job rather than working on-site for safety concerns."

COVID-19 has impacted the enterprise dramatically, resulting in layoffs, furloughs, and hiring freezes. However, some companies are still hiring, they may just not be as easy to find. This list aims to help job seekers locate employment during this economic tailspin, while maintaining social distancing practices.

The most popular career fields hiring remote employees include medical and health, computer and IT, customer service, education and training, sales, and accounting and finance, according to a FlexJobs blog post. The specific jobs people can complete from home are vast. Popular job titles include accountant, customer service representative, nurse, project manager, recruiter, teacher, web developer, and writer, Reynolds said. <h2> Top 70 companies hiring remote workers </h2> The blog post identified the following 70 companies looking for telecommuters.

Remote work is more in-demand than ever, so do what you can to be the perfect job seeker," Reynolds said. "Research companies that regularly offer remote work, as they're more likely to have the infrastructure in place right now to keep hiring." Applying for remote work may be a new experience for individuals. FlexJobs offered the following advice for those entering the process. <h3> <ul><li>Avoid scams</li></ul></h3> "Be on the lookout for scam jobs," Reynolds said. "Work-from-home scams are all-to-common in the remote job market. Know what scams typically look like so you can keep yourself safe." Reynolds outlined some of the telltale signs that signify a job posting might be a scam: <ul><li>The job listing sounds too good to be true, with language like quick money, un limited earning potential, and free work-from-home jobs.

</li><li>You're asked for money or sensitive personal data up front, either to secure your spot, buy a "work from home kit", get software , or other bogus reasons.
</li><li>There is a sense of urgency, or the recruiter is pushing you to accept the job now. Any legitimat e company won't push you into accepting a job offer immediately.<br/ ></li><li>The job post or email has obvious grammatical or spelling errors.
</li><li>You're offered the job without a recruiter veri fying your work experience or asking for references.
</li><li>Th e job description is unusually vague or spends too much time discuss ing how easy the job is or how much money you'll make. It might have grammatical errors, spelling mistakes, or lots of capitalization and punctuation (!!! WORK FROM HOME $$$).
</li></ul><h3> <ul><li><st rong>Write a remote-specific resume</li></ul></h3> Cateri ng your resume to remote work can be beneficial for landing remote j obs. Even if the individual only has in-office experience, there are still skills that can be catered to remote work. "Make sure you tailor your resume and cover letter for every application, and h ighlight the skills it takes to be a great remote worker, like commu nication, time management, independent working, comfort with technol ogy, and digital collaboration," Reynolds said. "Your resum e should also highlight any previous remote work experience you have . Even if that experience was only on occasion, it still counts as l ong as you were productive and effective during the times you worked from home," Reynolds added. <h3> <ul><li>Prep for a vi deo interview</li></ul></h3> Just because you can't meet in person doesn't mean there won't be an interview. Video interviews are the common mode of interviewing now that people are remote. Peop le can prepare for video interviews</ a> by checking their network connection, dressing professionally, an d doing their research on the interviewers. To confirm we have the right data, we used the read_html() function to get the table in a list form. Following that, we immediately converted the table into a data frame for easier manipulation of the data.

"The increase seems to be the result of several factors: Some folks have been recently la id off or fear they will be laid off soon. Others are activating the ir job search in a time of economic uncertainty to make sure they're ready," Reynolds said. "Some are seeking additional sources of incom e through part-time and project-based remote work. And others have d ecided they want to switch to a remote job rather than working on-si te for safety concerns."

Remote work is more in-demand than ever, so do what you can to be the perfect job seeker," Reynolds said. "Research companies that regularly offer remote work, as they're more likely to have the infrastructure in place right now to keep hiring." Applying for remote work may be a new experience for individuals. FlexJobs offered the following advice for those entering the process. <h3> <ul><li>Avoid scams</li></ul></h3> "Be on the lookout for scam jobs," Reynolds said. "Work-from-home scams are all-to-common in the remote job market. Know what scams typically look like so you can keep yourself safe." Reynolds outlined some of the telltale signs that signify a job posting might be a scam: <ul><li>The job listing sounds too good to be true, with language like quick money, unlimited earning potential, and free work-from-home jobs.
</li><li>You're asked for money or sensitive personal data up front, either to secure your spot, buy a "work from home kit", get software, or other bogus reasons.
</li><li>There is a sense of urgency, or the recruiter is pushing you to accept the job now. Any legitimate company won't push you into accepting a job offer immediately.
</li><li>The job post or email has obvious grammatical or spelling errors.
</li><li>You're offered the job without a recruiter verifying your work experience or asking for references.
</li><li>The job description is unusually vague or spends too much time discussing how easy the job is or how much money you'll make. It might have grammatical errors, spelling mistakes, or lots of capitalization and punctuation (!!! WORK FROM HOME $$$).
</li></ul><h3> <ul><li>Write a remote-specific resume</li></ul></h3> Catering your resume to remote work can be beneficial for landing remote jobs. Even if the individual only has in-office experience, there are still skills that can be catered to remote work. "Make sure you tailor your resume and cover letter for every application, and highlight the skills it takes to be a great remote worker, like communication, time management, independent working, comfort with technology, and digital collaboration," Reynolds said. "Your resume should also highlight any previous remote work experience you have. Even if that experience was only on occasion, it still counts as long as you were productive and effective during the times you worked from home," Reynolds added. <h3> <ul><li>Prep for a video interview</li></ul></h3> Just because you can't meet in person doesn't mean there won't be an interview. Video interviews are the common mode of interviewing now that people are remote. People can prepare for video interviews</ a> by checking their network connection, dressing professionally, an d doing their research on the interviewers. For more, chec
